PRINCETON UNIVERSITY TIGERTRANSIT

TigerTransit is Princeton University's transportation system that operates on a fixed route schedule during the academic year providing safe, convenient, and reliable transportation throughout the Princeton campus and surrounding community.

TigerTransit offers service with stops at academic and administrative buildings; faculty, staff, graduate, and undergraduate student housing; Nassau Street; and the Forrestal Campus and Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory.

Other services include connections to NJ Transit and the Princeton Borough Free B shuttle, service to MarketFair, alternating bi-weekly Saturday Shopper Lines, and on-demand service seven days a week between 11 pm and 3 am.

The entire TigerTransit fleet is comprised of low-floor, fully accessible buses that run on B20 biodiesel fuel. Riders will also be able to load bicycles onto a convenient front end bike rack. Each bus is equipped with a web-based GPS tracking feature that enables riders to track locations of buses on all routes online and by mobile web devices. To track bus locations in real-time, visit www.princeton.edu/transportation and click on TigerTracker.
