

Terms and conditions for the provision to journal contributors of PDF files of their articles as published

In cases where Cambridge provides to journal contributors PDFs of the published version of their articles, this will be on the terms and conditions below.

1. The PDF of the article is made available principally for the author's private use, or for teaching/research purposes by the author within his/her own institution.
2. The PDF may not be posted on a public website, except as provided for under 6 and 7 below.
3. The PDF may not be passed in an electronic form to another party, except for the purposes outlined in 6 and 7 below.
4. The PDF may not be altered and 'passed off' in an altered form as the original work, nor altered for any reason without the permission of Cambridge University Press.
5. The PDF may not be used in any other way which infringes the intellectual property rights of the copyright holder and/or software owner and/or owner of the moral rights to the article.
6. The PDF may be posted on the contributor's personal or departmental web page, no sooner than upon its appearance at Cambridge Journals Online, provided the posting includes a prominent statement of the full bibliographical details, a copyright notice in the name of the copyright holder (Cambridge University Press or the sponsoring Society, as appropriate), and a link to the online edition of the journal at Cambridge Journals Online.
7. The PDF may be posted in the Institutional Repository of the institution in which the contributor worked at the time the article was first submitted, or in a Subject Repository such as PubMedCentral, no sooner than one year after first publication of the article in the journal, provided the posting includes a prominent statement of the full bibliographical details, a copyright notice in the name of the copyright holder (Cambridge University Press or the sponsoring Society, as appropriate), and a link to the online edition of the journal at Cambridge Journals Online.

It is possible that reproduction of an article in a context not provided for above (e.g. to create a derivative work; or to be included in a collection of articles; or to be posted in an Institutional Repository outside of the institution in which the contributor worked at the time the article was first submitted) might be permissible under certain additional terms and conditions. If an author wishes to discuss this, they should contact the appropriate Press Permission Controller: Marc Anderson manderson@cambridge.org for contributors in North America; Wanda Clee wclee@cambridge.org for contributors in Australia and New Zealand; and Linda Nicol lnicol@cambridge.org for contributors in the rest of the world.
